SIC BO

A dice game of Asian origin, Sic Bo is a very simple table game with no limit as to the number of Players. It is played with three dice that determine the outcome of the game. The goal is to select the individual numbers, or combination of numbers, that will appear on the table. All maximum and minimum bets are posted at each Sic Bo table.

The game begins as Players lay their bets directly on the betting squares on the table. Sic Bo Players bet against the house, not against each other and anticipate what they think will turn up on the dice. Once the bets are placed (multiple bets can be made), the Dealer shakes a special container holding the dice three times. The Dealer then enters the numbers on the dice into an electronic keypad that lights up the winning numbers on the table. The Player whose bet is on the illuminated square wins. Bets pay off according to the odds indicated on the table's easy-to-read layout.

There are seven types of bets in Sic Bo:

SINGLE NUMBER BET

The Player bets on a single number (1 to 6). If the selected number turns up, the Player wins even money. If the selected number appears on two or all three dice, payoff is 2-1 or 3-1. For example, a $5 bet on a selected number that comes up once will earn the Player $5 (1-1); if the same number comes up twice, it will earn the Player $10 (2-1).

TWO NUMBER COMBINATION BET

This bet anticipates that a combination of two particular numbers will appear; the payoff is 5-1. For example, if a $10 wager is on a 2, 6 combination bet and the 2, 1, 6 combination comes up, the house pays the Player $50 (5 X $10). A die may only be used once in any winning combination.

THREE NUMBER (TOTAL SUM) BET

The Player bets on the combined total of all three dice. Bets on total numbers and payoffs vary as outlined on the Sic Bo table.

SMALL OR BIG BET

The Player predicts that the accumulated total of points that appear on all three dice will result in a low or high number. A small bet totals between 4 and 10; a big bet adds up to between 11 and 17. The payoff is 1-1. A combination of three identical numbers equals a loss, even though the total may be in the small or big bet category. A total of 3 or 18 equals a loss as well.

DOUBLE BET

The Player bets the resulting dice roll will contain two of any number. The house pays 10-1.

ANY TRIPLE BET

The Player bets the resulting dice roll will contain three of any number. The house pays 30-1.

TRIPLE BET

The highest odds in the game, the Player wagers that three of a specific number will appear. Triple bets offer the best pay off at 180-1.
